

◆ Information structure and syntactic theory

We work within different theoretical frameworks, and with different points of departure even within the same frameworks. We should therefore discuss how we can benefit from each other's work, and how we may collaborate across theories when we get to the stage where we compare different languages. What are the limitations of the theories?