

Periodisk evaluering – ENG 2333 / 4373 – Multicultural American Literature
Vår 2011

1. I don't have any comments on the pensum, exams, or teaching forms, as the course went very well, and I will teach the class again almost exactly as I have done this time, with only minor adjustments (maybe choose a couple of different books for the pensum just to keep things up to date.)

The only problem with the course was the room itself – there were well over 30 people signed up for the course, but it was in a seminar room in Sophus Bugges and we routinely did not have enough chairs for everyone. We were squeezed in there very tightly and it was uncomfortable for everyone. I tried to get the room changed, but was told this was impossible. I do expect the administration to be more aware of such situations and actually make room reservations that accommodate all who sign up for the course! This is the least one can expect.

2. Yes – although the formulation can be changed slightly, to perhaps reflect a historical perspective on the course material.
3. All functioned very well – I think the class is very important to have in an English department.
4. This is the first time the course has been offered as a 'heisemne' – I taught it as an MA course previously; I think it works better as a 'heisemne' (this comment also applies to point 3.)
5. No 'forslag' at this time.
