

Exam Guide
MEVIT4323

In the exam the students are expected to reflect critically on the comparative and methodological dimension of studies on immigration in Scandinavia, with focus on what characterizes the Scandinavian states (similarities and differences) and conceptual challenges (how to define key concepts). Students can also discuss the complex role of media platforms in high choice media societies and its implications for the the public sphere.

Students are expected to refer to key texts on the literature as well as methodological literature that they have found themselves. Students are expected to refer to relevant examples.